

WARSHIP FLEET COLOR SCHEMES

To: Major General Doc Trevena

While I understand the desire to issue your report in time for the next Star League conference, it was disheartening that my team's WarShip report could not be included. I have taken the liberty of attaching an extract from our work in the hope that it can be forwarded to League member states.

—Major Steven Partridge, Data Analysis Section, SLDF Intelligence Command.

Aegis-class SLS Chronicle

Star League

Vessels received a hull pattern (usually a combination of light and dark gray and one other color) unique to its world of construction. In addition, a heraldic shield design unique to each ship was unveiled during the launch ceremony. Over time this would be amended to commemorate acts of courage, honor and sacrifice. Long-serving ships proudly carried beautiful and intricate shields, though few would earn the coveted golden sunburst of a Martial Olympiad winner.

Although ships provided by the member states of the reformed Star League display the Cameron Star, they retain their original colors.